At Meeting of South
Arkansas Boosters.

MAGNOLIA, July 13. (Special)—
More than 200 delegates and visitors gathered yesterday at a one-day session of the South Arkansas Chamber of Commerce and heard well known agricultural and industrial leaders of this section plan and explain the development of the industrial resources of the state.

Following a two-hour morning session presided over by C. A. Overstreet, president of the body, during which time brief talks were made by a number of prominent business and professional men of South Arkansas, luncheon was served in the dining hall of the A. & M. college.

At two o'clock the meeting was called to order again and a short business session held.

Declaring that "this gathering is the vanguard of South Arkansas progress," Wade Kitchens, Magnolia attorney, delivered the address of welcome. He was followed by J. O. Livesay, of Arkadelphia, who talked of the ideals of the organization.

Mr. Overstreet, head of the Magnolia A. & M. school, told of the work the school was doing in fitting young people of the farm for agricultural leadership.

J. O. Hutchinson, Magnolia banker, spoke on the relationship of banks to state development. J. L. Bond, of El Dorado, superintendent of Union county schools, recounted the advance made by the state's educational system in the past few years, and T. J. Gaughan, of Camden, made an earnest plea for definite reforestation programs.

Many towns in south Arkansas were represented at the meeting.

They Raise 'Em In Pairs
Down To Rocky Mound

Frank Bennett, good friends of the Star from the Rocky Mound region, came in this morning and presented this office with twin canteloupes—and what we mean by that is they are perfect twins. If they taste as good as they look—well that will be something else again.

Asked how he managed it, Mr. Bennett, replied that Rocky Mound soil wasn't like other soil. It was different and produced different things. Hundred pound watermelons got to be so common nobody paid any attention to them, and if two canteloupes don't start any talk, next year he promises triplets.

Highways In Good Shape for Travel

Commission Says Roads Never In Better Condition.

LITTLE ROCK, July 13.—(AP)—
Arkansas highways are in excellent condition for week-end vacation and tourist use the department announced today.

The only route likely to cause any inconvenience is that to St. Louis. Here there are two routes available: Highway 67 to Newport and 25 to Paragould and Dexter. The other is Highway 70 to West Memphis and then No. 61 to Sikeston and in to St. Louis through Cairo.

Caudle Seeks To Quash True Bill

Attorneys Offer Demurra To Indictment Charging Bribery.

LITTLE ROCK, July 13.—(AP)—
Judge Marvin Harris in Pulaski circuit court today heard argument of attorneys representing Reece Caudle, member of the Arkansas Railroad Commission, under indictment on a charge of bribery in connection with the passage of a bill by the last legislature legalizing horse racing and pari-mutuel betting. At the conclusion of the hearing Judge Harris announced he would render a decision on July 22.

Caudle's attorneys contend that the indictment charged more than one offense, pointing out that the indictment charged bribery, attempted bribery and conspiracy to bribe. Other technical errors in the indictment were also urged as reasons it should be quashed.

Caudle was indicted by a Pulaski county grand jury following an investigation into charges made by Senator John M. Quayles, of Helena, that he had been offered a bribe to vote for the horse racing measure. Caudle has been at liberty under $3,000 bond since his arrest.

Batesville Woman To Stay In Jail

Court Refuses Application for Release On Bail.

BATESVILLE, Ark., July 13.—Circuit Judge Bone today denied the application of Mrs. Norma Osborne, charged with the murder of her husband, for a writ of habeas corpus to permit her release from jail under bond. She was remanded to jail on a first-degree murder charge to await hearing.

The writ was asked on the grounds that a Justice of the Peace at a preliminary hearing a few days ago reduced the charge to second degree murder and set bond and on the further ground that there was insufficient evidence to support a first degree murder charge.

Following the action of the Justice of the Peace in reducing the degree of the crime, prosecuting attorney Williamson dismissed the action and filed another first degree murder charge in another court.

J. F. Barber, Batesville high school athlete sought as the action slayer of the woman's husband, is at large today, authorities being unable to locate him. He is wanted on the same charge on which the woman is held.

Mrs. Dorothy Nokes of London was convicted of bigamy, but was set off with a two-day jail sentence.

Nashville Man Is Given War Medals

Legion of Honor and Croix du Guerre for Signal Gallantry.

NASHVILLE, July 13.—Frank L. Pennington, who lives on Rural No. 2 near Washington, has been awarded the American Legion of Honor and the French Croix de Guerre for bravery in the World War, Mr. Pennington receiving the Croix de Guerre only a few days since. The Legion of Honor was delivered to Mr. Pennington several years ago.

The citation accompanying the Croix de Guerre recites the fact that Mr. Pennington, who was a corporal in the Seventh Machine Gun Battalion, was wounded while driving an ammunition truck thru the enemy barrage at Chateau Thierry on July 9, 1918, and that he did not leave his post until relieved by another driver. Mr. Pennington received five different wounds in action during the world war, but this is the only occasion for which he was cited for bravery so far as has been reported.

Mr. Pennington, although justly proud of the diplomas and the medals which accompanied them, was very reticent to talk of the matter for publication.

National Guard To Be Dressed Up

New Uniforms for Various Units Ready for Use In Early Fall.

LITTLE ROCK, July 13.—Brig. Gen. E. L. Compere, adjutant general, said yesterday that 2,457 new Melton o. d. roll collar uniforms have been allotted to the Arkansas National Guard and that delivery is expected early next fall. Measurements of troops in various outfits were obtained and sizes grouped to assure better fitting uniforms. They are being made up at the Philadelphia Quartermaster Depot, General Compere and other officers who have seen the new style uniforms say they are a great improvement in style, quality, fit and appearance over the old "choker" style uniform.

It was announced at the Military Department yesterday that bids will be opened July 19 for overhauling and repairing pumps at the Camp Pike pumping plant.

The Military Department has received from the Savannah Ordnance Depot an artillery caisson to be used in transporting the casket in military funerals.

Signal Company Employee Killed

Fails To Notice Approach of Train and Is Crushed.

LITTLE ROCK, July 13. (AP)—A. R. Widholm, employed by a signal corporation, was killed today when struck by a southbound Missouri-Pacific freight train about four miles south of the city where he and others were doing welding work for the company.

There were no witnesses to the accident but it is believed that Widholm, making computations, was on the track and failed to notice the approaching train. He was in charge of the crew.

Kansas Towns Suffer As Floods Sweep Thru Them

Hutchinson and Salina Among Cities In Path of Waters.

MANY MAROONED

Hip Deep In Business District Waters Spread Over City.

HUTCHINSON, Kan., July 13.—(AP)—Swirling waters hip deep, raced through the business section here today and spread into the residential district.

Residents of Salina also were victims of the flood, the northwestern quarter of that city, including the railroad, wholesale and mill district being covered with from a few inches to a foot of water.

The Hutchinson flood was the worst in the history of the city. It struck the city last night when Cow creek overflowed its banks as the result of heavy rains, reaching almost the proportions of mudslides, in its upper reaches earlier in the week.

Arkansas Crops In Fine Shape

Cotton and All Small Grain Promises Rich Yield.

LITTLE ROCK, July 13.—(AP)—Arkansas crops are in excellent condition despite an unfavorable and backward spring, according to a summary of crop conditions issued today by C. S. Bouton, federal-state crop statistician.

The citation accompanying the Croix de Guerre recites the fact that Mr. Pennington, who was a corporal in the Seventh Machine Gun Battalion, was wounded while driving an ammunition truck thru the enemy barrage at Chateau Thierry on July 9, 1918, and that he did not leave his post until relieved by another driver. Mr. Pennington received five different wounds in action during the world war, but this is the only occasion for which he was cited for bravery so far as has been reported.

Mr. Pennington, although justly proud of the diplomas and the medals which accompanied them, was very reticent to talk of the matter for publication.

Rice was generally reported free from grass at the beginning of the month indicating a healthy condition of this crop. The forecast is for a crop of 6,842,000 bushels.

Youngsters Have Time At C. M. T. C.

Boys From County Write In They Are Enjoying Work.

The Hempstead county contingent of young men attending the C. M. T. C. at Jefferson Barracks, St. Louis, are enjoying every minute of the stay, according to letters sent in to this office and are having plenty of fun.

They reached St. Louis Monday morning and were immediately assigned to various units, out fitted in soldier clothing and buckled down to the business of learning how to be a soldier. Among those from this county in attendance are:

Perry Payne, Clyde Phillips, J. D. Jacks, George Huston, Luther Reynolds, Norman Moore, Elvion Pritchett, Harold Payne, Matthew Reaves, John P. Arnett, Chas. W. Barnall, Isaac Moore, J. D. Hendry, Herbert Arnold and Leslie B. Clegg.

South American Route Inspected

Highway To Connect Two Continents Passes Thru Hope.

Officials of the Pan-American Highway association, connecting North and South America, were in Hope today inspecting the route of No. 67, which has been approved for the inter-continental highway also.

The Pan-American route comes west and south through Cairo, Ill., Corning, Ark., Little Rock and Hope, and passes out of the United States at Laredo, Texas. Thence it travels to Mexico City, across the Isthmus of Panama and into South America.

Pastor Spurns Clock Punching

GATTA RAUGUS, N. Y., July 13.—This little town is without its astute night watchman all because the community's elders, in a wave of efficiency, installed a time clock.

The Rev. A. C. Down, a Methodist pastor, became the town's sole guardian during the dark hours of the night and capably administered his duties for more than five years. However, when officials installed the clock he refused to punch it. When questioned he said it challenged his conscientiousness and resigned. Down it now searching for a pastorate.

District Brings Highway Into City Over Paved Streets.

CONTRACTOR READY

Believed North Side Work Will Begin Within Few Days.

Construction crews are expected to begin work on the South Main street paving project Monday morning.

The district bonds are in the course of being signed and issued, and with money in the bank Contractor Constant will start grading operations at once. Sixteen blocks comprise the South Main district, which runs from the present terminus of the paving south of Third street, clear to the city line on Sixteenth street. Down to Ninth street, South Main will be 36 feet wide, and from Ninth to Sixteenth, 30 feet.

This district brings the Lewisville state road, No. 29, into Hope, the state gravel to connect with city concrete at Sixteenth street. First course of gravel has already been completed on the Lewisville road as far north as the last state control point, about a mile and a half from the city, where it was taken over by the Comptroller.

The bank was 40 years old, the oldest in the county, and its affairs were thought to be in good condition and the closing comes as a surprise.

Robison Soon To Open In Nashville

New Place To Be Among Most Complete In Howard County.

NASHVILLE, July 13.—Several big shipments of merchandise have been received by G. W. Robison and Company here, and the new merchandise is now being arranged by a large force, preparatory to the opening of the store in the near future. Mr. Robison has not yet decided on the definite date for the opening, but stated yesterday that it will be in the near future, and he expects to make his opening a big event in merchandising here.

The new department store, for which the large building was erected at Main and West Hempstead streets by J. R. and J. L. Hill, will carry a $50,000 stock of merchandise. Mr. Robison says this will be the largest stock carried in this section. It will require some time yet to get the goods in place and the store ready to receive customers. The new business will be a big asset to Nashville.

Spanish Trail To Be Tree-Lined Boulevard

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., July 13.—(AP)—The task of making the Old Spanish Trail one of the south's most beautiful highways will be undertaken this year.

Already the western Texas division of this highway's national organization has planted 10,000 trees eastward from El Paso. It is planned to make the whole road a tree-lined boulevard, from St. Augustine, Fla., to the Pacific coast.

A section of the highway out of San Antonio has led one phase of the beautification program by having all fences set back 100 feet from the road. Many structures along the road follow the old Spanish type of architecture.

Contempt Charges Against Editors

Court Orders Cleveland Press Executives Held for Contempt.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, July 13. (AP)—The Cleveland Press and four of its executives were cited for contempt of court today by Common Pleas Judge Frederick P. Walther for an editorial appearing in Thursday's paper criticizing the just for granting an injunction to permit the operation of the Thistle-down track.

The citation orders the defendants to appear Monday to show cause why they should not be adjudged guilty of contempt for the printing of the editorial, which appeared after the court had granted an injunction restraining the sheriff from interfering with the operation of the "Thistle-down" track and "convenient" betting system in operation there.

The fact that there is no extradition treaty between the United States and China saves Mrs. Susie Ying Kao, wife of the Chinese sub-consul at San Francisco, from the possibility of being beheaded in her trunk at San Francisco; if she were deported to China she would probably meet the ordinary fate of smugglers in that land—execution by the sword. Instead, federal authorities will probably seek a term of imprisonment for her. Dr. Ing Kao and Mrs. Kao are shown here.

Equal Rights for Commerce

YESTERDAY at Magnolia there was a big rally of business men celebrating the semi-annual meeting of the South Arkansas Chamber of Commerce. For a voluntary alliance of business men the south state chamber has shown exceptional spirit and enterprise—but the odds against which a voluntary association has to struggle in the battle for industry and wealth against the organized East, are tremendous. Our idea of chambers of commerce is they should be tax-supported.

Is there any more reason for using tax money to support a political government, which rules the people, than a commercial structure, upon which their bread depends?

The theory of tax-supported chambers of commerce has been tried by two of the most aggressive states in the Union—Florida and California. Even in Arkansas we have granted permission for Little Rock to bond herself, if she chooses, to pay for industrial advertising—which amounts simply to a tax-supported chamber of commerce.

Here in the South and Southwest we have a wonderful opportunity to grow as cities without incurring the dis-sent and hatred which characterize the older cities of the East. We have the chance to be more efficient, because more of our people work for a living; and to be better citizens, because we are not large enough for our various groups to misunderstand one another.

We see two reasons for adopting the principle of a tax-supported chamber of commerce: In the first place the progress and prosperity of this coming country demands that its resources be heavily exploited. That takes money. The most democratic way of distributing the cost of a program which helps everybody, is through taxation. It would save a lot of lip argument until we could look at the results—which is the cardinal principle of success in private business.

The other great reason for a tax-supported chamber is that democratic support of this business organization would bring it into the true relationship which should exist between the chamber of commerce and the private citizen. It is the common failing of chambers everywhere that they fall into the hands of cliques among business men, and incur the open hostility of labor. That is wrong.

Yet there is one chamber of commerce well known over Arkansas which led an anti-labor fight in its own city, which made the chamber a veritable clearing house for industrial warfare, and which promoted destruction instead of prosperity. But who was to blame for that? Nobody but the city which permitted its most important commercial organization to go to rot for lack of adequate support. And a chamber of commerce, like many other things, doesn't die when inadequately supported—it merely draws aid from questionable sources, and from a public asset degenerates into a public nuisance.

Here in the South, where we are just beginning things, is a splendid opportunity to demand equal rights for commerce. It would be fine if Arkansas were to start it, and better if Hope were to lead Arkansas.

A Fear Dies Out

APPARENTLY the good old pastime of hunting for red radicals isn't quite as lucrative in this country as it was a few years ago.

Fred R. Marvin, head of the Key Men of America, is finding that out.

For a long time Marvin's organization has been issuing to its subscribers daily data sheets reporting "radical and subversive movements." No one could smell a Bolshevik as far off as Marvin. No one could so easily get in a panic over unsuspected dangers to the republic.

But now—alas!—the data sheets are being discontinued. This Marvin explains, is due to a lack of financial support.

People are learning that getting scared of radicals is, for Americans, nothing less than silly. Mr. Marvin's downfall is a sign of our returning sanity.

WASHINGTON LETTER

BY RODNEY DUTCHER

WASHINGTON—Washington is ready to entertain Premier Ramsay MacDonald of England on short notice, for Washington has entertained notables before.

Theoretically, MacDonald will rank no higher as an official visitor than the prime minister of Lithuania or Abyssinia. Actually, of course, the significance of his visit and the importance of Great Britain in our foreign affairs will make his presence of unprecedented official and popular interest.

MacDonald is expected this summer. He probably will sail on one of the larger British liners, rather than on a warship such as President Hoover used for his goodwill tour of Latin America. The State Department will cooperate with the British embassy—which, of course, will be made cognizant of MacDonald's wishes—in staging the visit. A high official of the department will be the first to greet him at Quarantine off New York. This official may be Undersecretary of State Joseph P. Cotton or it may be Secretary of State Stimson, himself. More likely, though, it will be William R. Castle, assistant undersecretary in charge of western European affairs. When Queen Marie of Romania came she was met by Undersecretary J. Butler Wright.

Whoever it is will accompany the premier to Washington, after the whoopee New York probably will make over him at the Battery and at City Hall. The secretary of state will meet him at the railroad station here and accompany him to the British embassy, where MacDonald is practically certain this point the visit becomes officially recognized.

If the prime minister reaches Washington before late afternoon he will be received almost immediately by President Hoover at the White House. If he arrives subsequently this will be delayed until morning.

After leaving the White House MacDonald will call on the secretary of state at the State Department. Secretary Stimson will then call on MacDonald at the embassy, returning both the call on himself and that on the president.

President Hoover will undoubtedly invite the premier either to an official dinner or an official luncheon. Secretary Stimson will then provide another official meal and Sir Esme Howard, the British ambassador, will stage another large party at the embassy by way of returning the compliment.

These three affairs will be large and formal and guests will include Chief Justice Taft, the cabinet members and other big government officials. The British ambassador, of course, would be a guest at the Hoover and Stimson meals.

The embassy is receiving numerous requests for MacDonald's presence at all sorts of banquets, meetings and celebrations. MacDonald doubtless will accept two or three of these, although he is not likely to remain in this country for more than ten days.

FORTUNE-TELLING IS WOMAN'S WEAKNESS

Would you reveal your innermost secrets to a perfect stranger? There are thousands of women who make a practice of doing this very thing and think nothing of it, according to George Melford, director of "The Charlton," Universal's mystery picture which opens at the New Grand Theatre Monday and Tuesday.

"Many women," said Melford, "have a childlike faith in fortunetellers. Omnipotence, or the quality of infinite knowledge, is generally believed to be a part of their stock in trade. The fortune teller will guess or hint at some trivial truth, and this leads his clients to reveal everything they know."

Pop was feeling like a million until he found an old family medical book in a box of trash and now he thinks that he has symptoms of a dozen fatal diseases. Doe! I must have that too!

NOT FEELING RIGHT? FOREVER MORE, WHATEVER'S WRONG WITH YOU, IT CERTAINLY ISN'T INSOMNIA. THE WAY YOU SNORED ALL NIGHT IS NOBODY'S BUSINESS.

JUST THE SAME, I'M GOING TO STOP IN AND SEE DOC STULL. HE KNOWS ALL ABOUT LEPROSY.

LEPROSY! WHAT ON EARTH GIVES YOU THE IDEA THAT YOU HAVE LEPROSY?

WELL, I'VE GOT A LOT OF LEPROSY SYMPTOMS. LAST WEEK I HAD SPOTS BEFORE MY EYES AND A COATED TONGUE AND LAST NIGHT I WOKE UP SLEEPING WITH MY HANDS UNDER MY HEAD.

OF ALL THE TOMMYROT! YOU TALK LIKE A PATENT MEDICINE AD.

IS THAT SO, WELL, MANY AN UNDERTAKER HAS GROUPED RICH OR HEALTHY LOOKING PEOPLE WHO POOPOO'D THEIR SYMPTOMS UNTIL TOO LATE, AND I DON'T INTEND TO BE ONE OF THEM!

LUPE VELEZ SINGS IN GRIFFITH SOUND FILM

Lupe Velez, because of her training as a dancer, her distinctive beauty is admirably cast. In the opening sequences of "Lady of the Pavements" she appears as a girl of the cabarets and does a solo dance which is one of the most captivating sights this reviewer has seen on the screen. The dynamic energy and vivacity which were

The New Currency Should Last Longer

The purpose of reducing the size of currency was to provide bills which would stand constant and rough handling. The new bills are tougher, and it is expected that they will not be folded so much. Also, less paper is required in their making.

PERSONAL MENTION

Mrs. L. H. Shepherd and daughter, Franelle, have returned to their home in Hot Springs after several days visit with Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Shiver.

Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Scott were looking after business matters in the city today and were pleasant callers at this office while here.

Justice S. F. Huntley and Constable Zimmy have fitted up offices of the City Cafe where they can be found most any time they are needed.

Mrs. Chas. Shiver received her weekly letter from Mrs. F. J. Coelen who is visiting her mother in the east. Mrs. Coelen said it was still cold up there and conditions are about the same as they are in the south. Silk mills are taking the place of cotton mills. Fall River, now has seven large silk mills.

Mr. and Mrs. Claude Houston left this morning for Pine Bluff where they will visit for a day or two with friends and relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. John W. Holt, living near Washington and among the county's most highly respected citizens were in Hope this morning coming down with their son, W. E., of Mena, who is on a visit to the old home place.

one more night," she told him. A sparkling little solitaire.

In the store it looked large and very bright and beautiful. Now it looked little and cheap. He shook his head mournfully and slipped it back in his pocket.

And that night Molly cried herself to sleep.

Next morning she would look for work with Rita.

Married in Lavish Setting

Their's was Connecticut's most lavish wedding. pomp and splendor marked the marriage of Marquis Lippo Gerni of Italy and Miss Lillian Madelyn Poli, shown above after the colorful ceremony near New Haven. The bride's father, Sylvester Z. Poli, an immigrant boy who rose to become a multi-millionaire vaudeville magnate, gave away his daughter, a $2,000,000 dowry and literally tons of food and gifts to thousands of persons who attended the wedding and reception. Participants in the affair included the social elect, a duke and duchess and 3000 Italian-Americans who paraded after the ceremony wedding. One hundred police reserves kept order.

"Anyhow," she announced, "You'll have time to walk up with me before your train goes."

When they said goodbye she clung to him. And he held her as though he could never let her go.

"Remember what you said the other night about premonitions, Molly?"

"Sh!" She laid her fingers on his lips.

They clung to each other in a sort of ecstatic misery. And when Molly had gone up the steps, Jack drew a small box from his pocket. He opened it, and the moon shone on a little solitaire.

The SHINING TALENT

By ELEANOR EARLY © 1929 By NEA Service Inc.

THIS HAS HAPPENED

Molly Burnham, graduating from college, falls head over heels in love with young Jack Wells, a Harvard man, handsome, and poor as a church mouse. On commencement day the dean sends for her, to discuss her future. Molly has a decided talent for writing. But she wants to marry Jack, and that will be a whole lot sweeter than trying to be a novelist or a poet.

Waiting in the dean's office, she idly picks up the morning paper, and there, on the editorial page, she sees a bit of verse about a girl whose ambition was thwarted by marriage.

Molly tears the verse from the paper, and sticks it in her vanity. Then confusedly, she discusses her future with the dean. First, the dean offers her a splendid position in the literary world. Molly says that she means to be married shortly but she supposes she could also try her hand at writing.

The dean smiles. "Oh, no," she says. "You cannot mix love and a career."

Then the dean rather abruptly dismisses her.

Jack arrives to take her to the president's tea. That evening he paddle about on College Lake, and Jack makes love madly.

"Oh, Jack," begs Molly, "Let's get married now. I love you so. And I don't care how poor we are!"

Now Go On With the Story

CHAPTER VI
"So you got rid of 'em," observed Rita.

She propped herself on satin pillow of Chinese blue, and scuffed her sigaret in a cloisonne dish. "Hen parties always give everything!"

She got up suddenly and began to fold the crimson cover-

CHAPTER VI

"That's what you think," interrupted Rita drily. "Well, my dear, I thought when I got married, I was going to be happy, too. And naturally I expected to make Bob happy. And what have I done? Just messed up everything!"

She got up suddenly and began to fold the crimson cover-

CHAPTER VI

"That's why I asked you to come here tonight," she said. "To warn you against marriage like mine. Companionate marriage is trap, Molly. It sounds so big and free and brave. It provides for expression, liberty, all that sort of thing. But it doesn't think of the essentials, the sweet, simple, simple, homely things. What has it done for me? It hasn't given me the tenderness of my beloved. It hasn't given me a home. It hasn't even brought me comradeship."

"Lay off marriage, can't you?" commanded Molly crossly. "Maybe your love for Bob has cooled. But that won't ever happen to Jack and me."

"Oh, my love hasn't cooled," injected Rita bitterly. "That's my tragedy. It isn't the cooling kind. Now don't be a little fool and get sore because I've tried to save you a fall, my dear. Just keep your mind on that $10,000, that's all."

Molly had telegraphed Jack about her legacy, and he wired rather formal congratulations, adding that he would be out the next night to take her to dinner, and asking her to meet him at the station.

She greeted him gaily. "Isn't it wonderful, sweetheart? Now we can get married!"

There were tears in Rita's eyes. "For the love of Pete," she exclaimed irritably, "get out that light, will you? I never knew anyone so slow in my life!"

Molly put down the hair brush, and put out the light.

"Sap out of it, Rita," she advised. "You're all tired out and you're making mountains out of mole hills."

Molly knelt and said her prayers. "I didn't know you said prayers," observed Rita. Molly didn't answer.

"Do you father and mother see them?" pursued Rita.

"I suppose so," Molly was embarrassed.

"Well, I think that's very nice," approved Rita. "Maybe that's why they're so happy."

"Mhbe," acknowledged Molly. She was conscious herself of a very nice little warmth about her heart. "Why don't you say some, Rita?"

"Who? Me?" Rita yawned. "I don't know any."

They lay side by side. The clock on the dressing table ticked with piercing clarity. Somewhere a bell rang. Two o'clock. A rooster crowed. And a man, with heavy tread, passed on the concrete walk beneath the window.

"I'm going to take a room," she announced, "and look for a job. I couldn't do that when I didn't have any money, because I knew Dad would stop my allowance. But now that I've funds of my own, it's different. Then we can pool our incomes and get married."

"What do you think I am?" he interrupted unreasonably. "A squat man?"

Molly shrugged coolly. "Rita said something last night," she observed. "and I guess she was right."

"Rita's a nitt," he pronounced.

"Well, I guess she knew what she was talking about, defended Molly. "She said that lots of men refuse to consider their wives' earning power from an economic point of view."

"Oh, Rita and her modern talk!" he scoffed. "Anyhow, if men are like that, what are you going to do about it? Love is like that, too. I've tried to tell you how a man who loves a girl feels about it. How he wants to take care of her . . . But you won't understand."

"Oh, I understand all right," insisted Molly. "Only I think it's awfully silly. And, listen Jack—I've been thinking things over. You don't want to marry me now, and I don't see any reason why I should be perfectly miserable for a whole year, and goodness knows how much longer, just waiting for you. The Dean sent for me the other day, and she said he'd die before he'd touch a cent of my earnings."

And Molly exclaimed warmly, "Oh, Rita, I'm sorry! dear. But you mustn't let Bob get bitter. Nobody makes money right straight off. Goodness Jack hasn't a cent. Bob ought to know that when a girl loves a boy, it doesn't make any difference whether he has any money or not."

Rita turned fiercely. "But it does!" she cried. "I love my boy, brilliant Bob. But this new Bob—this bitter, frustrated failure. This loving man who's eating his heart out, and my heart, too."

She drew the curtains together, shutting out the moon, and crossed the room to sit on the bed.

"That's why I asked you to come here tonight," she said. "To warn you against marriage like mine. Companionate marriage is trap, Molly. It sounds so big and free and brave. It provides for expression, liberty, all that sort of thing. But it doesn't think of the essentials, the sweet, simple, simple, homely things. What has it done for me? It hasn't given me the tenderness of my beloved. It hasn't given me a home. It hasn't even brought me comradeship."

"I don't care!" she cried. "I can't help it. I guess I've a right to live my own life!"

They were quiet for a few minutes.

"Well, I wouldn't even think of accepting," Molly's voice broke.

"I loved you so!" she choked.

"And I didn't want anything in the world but just to marry you. Only now . . . you've been so funny and hateful . . . and you won't get married . . . and you won't do anything at all I want you to! Well, I'm going to get a job—that's what I'm going to do! I'll just show you!"

"What will your father and mother have to say?" he asked quietly. "They expect you home, Molly. They'll be pretty much broken up if you disappoint them."

"I don't care!" she cried. "I can't help it. I guess I've a right to live my own life!"

They were quiet for a few minutes.

Pester Farmer—Help Man

While they devour an enormous quantity of grain and other farm products every year, rats are in another way beneficial to mankind. At Iowa State College, Ames, Ia., more than 4000 of them are kept by the chemistry and food and nutrition departments for experiments conducted in diseases and diets. The picture shows an alligator weighing rats taken from the cages along the wall.
